Not the slightest. Q. Whose handwriting is this A. So far as I see, it is the handwriting of Mr. James Farrelly, a clerk in our office. Q. In whose handwriting is the pencil writing A. The pencil writing, Mr. George H. Forster likes to see this before it is sent to Brown, is in Mr. Farrelly's handwriting, and the words in pencil, to Addison Brown, 195 Broadway, is also in his handwriting. Q. Who directed the preparation of the abstract, do you know A. I do not know. My recollection is that I gave the information as to the devolution of the title from A. and G. W. Brady to Alfred Brady, from the knowledge that I had obtained in that litigation; whether I gave it to Mr. Veekes or to Mr. Farrelly, after he...
