According to the World Health Organization statistics, as of May 8, said, 25 countries and regions worldwide, about 2,500 people have been confirmed infected with influenza A H1N1 virus. WHO officials remind Asian countries to be alert spread of the disease, the third of the world (more than 20 million people) or more of the population in the coming months or next year may be infected with this virus. Chinese Academy of Engineering, respiratory diseases, experts said Zhong Nanshan, 1918, 1968 and 1977, the worldwide emergence of an influenza pandemic, not a wave, usually two or three waves if the waves are the waves continue, the epidemic spread Of course, the upgrade if not continue to rise, this wave may have passed, but this year will not be a second wave of autumn, is hard to predict. U.S. Center for Disease Control under the Coordination Centre for Infectious Diseases Mitchell Cohen believes that historical experience shows that early in the pandemic of some disease, the symptoms may be...
