AuthorHouse. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 184 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.5in. What has yet been said of love, that bears a means by which the species may at long last gain an understanding for change to that most thrilling, potent and sharing emotion yet visited upon mankind . . . How does one deal with a condition one nothing knows about . . . However much the chemistry of love appears physical, mildly mental, and thrust with an element vaguely referred to as emotion, the fact of the matter, is that love is a mystery. Intrinsic of substance, and made manifest by a host of glorifying virtues through the chain of its Mystic Nature and Component Structure. Of which, Virtue is the key component. In its human equation, love is linked by motivating character; and nobly expresses her bountiful season through the myriad of virtuous human assimilations. And how is this achieved While love is a gift, for it is known as the sanction of heaven, we must first build it a place in which to abide. Where the modes of character are its means expression. What you know of love, or believe you do, is both physical and sociological. That same quantum and limit to which wild animals and crickets experience. Minus of course, the sociological trauma responsible for tearing relationships apart. . . . Here, a new code of values is mandatory and inherently pertinent to Heavens greatest gift. The Search for the Ethics of Love is rewardingly based on rock foundation, yet in its simplicity, which is the marrow of its giving, against, the tide of sociological answers, love is turned away again and again. Occurring much as a sacrament, given of holy principle, or in its base opposite, a curse, come of deceiving maneuvers...
