Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .After yet another break up, a depressed writer is drawn back to London, only to find that his self-destructive tendencies are a little harder to leave behind. Your problem is you re more like an empty book, and you re waiting on someone else to write your pages for you. For someone who doesn t believe in fate, destiny and all that shit, you spend a lot of time waiting for something to happen to you. A return to London brings slight reprieve from a break up, and narrator Cal finds refuge in meaningless jobs, temporary relationships and a disconnected life where loneliness is an ironic by-product of living in a city of eight million. And the city has its own plans. Assaulted on Christmas Eve, horrible bosses, a suicidal, escort flat-mate and a writing job for a less than responsible employer all to add to Cal s constant hangover. When Sofia appears, a woman he is both attracted to and suspicious of, Cal soon finds himself in a co-dependent relationship full of turmoil and hard truths. If you aren t paranoid before you arrive then give it a few weeks and you ll soon notice it dripping into your subconscious like a leaking tap. The trick is not to give a flying fuck what anyone thinks about you, and if you re in the right frame of mind this can be an easy trick to perform. If not, you ll soon notice that for a city full of people - who do a great Stevie Wonder impersonation when it comes to the homeless and beggars and casual violence towards others - wearing the wrong kind of shoes or a cheap suit...
