Three brothers who hail from the poor Eastern Cape Province embark on pursuing businesses from scratch. The brothers, Joseph, Shane and Eric are saddened by the ailing governance of South Africa, and they decide to take matters into their own hands in the form of building businesses that will create more job opportunities for the black community, especially those who live in the most remote abandoned areas of this beautiful and declared democratic country. The brothers are more aware of the fact that the main purpose of business is to generate profit, and not to over-indulge in charity, hence theyre planning to do everything with an open mind. The brothers decide to leave their comfort-zone and focus their energies on creating empires that will grow into irresistible brands. In spite of their huge ambitions yet they understand the power of taking baby-steps, one step at a time; which includes learning and researching. The brothers passion for business and South Africa proves to be their recipe for success. The brothers havent forgotten their roots as well since they want to be loyal and relate to the Qitsi community, their birth-place. This doesnt mean that they will jeopardise their business savvy for the sake of pleasing their community though. The brothers want to show their community that a mans success is never determined by their background, but by their hunger to succeed and willingness to enter the unknown. Starting a business from scratch is a daunting task which requires one to develop thick skin, learning not to take a no for an answer in the process; hence the brothers are well prepared to face and defeat all these challenges. They...
